Current law provides that cases of rate setting, power plant and power line siting, and granting of certificates of need related to certain large energy facilities constitute a form of "administrative action" that requires disclosure reporting under chapter 10A, if a principal spends money to influence these types of actions. This bill requires that this type of spending be itemized separately on the principal's disclosure reports, rather than incorporated into the total amount of spending reported by the principal for all types of lobbying activity.
